Dr. Robin Newhouse is Professor and Chair of the Organizational Systems and Adult Health Program at University of Maryland School of Nursing (UMSON). She received her Baccalaureate, Master's, and PhD degrees from the University of Maryland School of Nursing. Dr. Newhouse is a leading expert in evidence-based practice, and the implementation of evidence in the delivery of nursing care to improve clinical outcomes. As a health services researcher she studies processes of care and related patient outcomes. Dr. Newhouse is a member of the American Nurses Credentialing Center's (ANCC) Research Council. In 2011, she was appointed to the Methodology Committee of the Patient-Centered Outcomes Research Institute (PCORI), and she currently serves as Chair. The recipient of numerous awards and honors, in 2014 she received the Researcher of Year award from the University of Maryland Baltimore and was inducted into the Nurse Researcher Hall of Fame, Sigma Theta Tau International Honor Society in Nursing. Her research has been funded by the Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality and the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation. Together with her colleagues, she has developed "PATIENTS" - a collaborative program that engages patients as consultants and advisors in the design of research examining the comparative effectiveness of new treatments. The author of numerous peer-reviewed publications, Dr. Newhouse is a Fellow of the American Academy of Nursing.
